GB on TV

GB women took on Germany in the semi-finals of the Champions Trophy and put in a comprehensive performance to comfortably win 2-0 against the World Number 3 team. The other semi-final ended in a Penalty Shuffle which Argentina won against Netherlands and so they were the opponents for the final on Sunday night. With a big contingent of support staying up late in England to watch the 11pm GMT match England again put in a solid performance against the World Number 2 but were on the wrong end of a one goal margin come the final whistle. Still, the girls achieved their highest ever finish in a world level tournament which bodes well for London 2012, when the Brits, not the Argentines, will have the benefit of the home support and all the girls have confirmed they are definitely aiming for Gold! Good luck girls!

We would also like to congratulate Chloe Rogers on receiving her 50th GB cap in the final. A great achievement!

Quiz Night 2012 - Report - By Anna (Kat thinks "my team" could associate her with the losing team which, of course, she would never be on)!!

Another great quiz, although a little bit on the quiet side due to the predicted snow. Thank you to Fred for writing the quiz, Nigel for playing Quiz Master and to his lovely assistant Anthea aka Bunny!

Well done to "Brass Monkeys" for winning the 2012 Quiz, no wonder they came out top with at least 400 years of knowledge between them!! ;o) In second place with a respectable score were the "Picnic Packers" who's name was inspired by the fact they had enough food to feed everyone there, not that they shared any of it! ;o) In third, with a slightly cleaner name than normal were "The Mopperati" and bringing up the rear was my team, "Unlikely", clearly we had faith in our general knowledge from the start!!

The raffle had a high ratio of prizes to tickets and at least one member of every team went home with a prize, as well as our Quiz Master and Writer! So everyone was a winner ...yes I am clutching at straws!!
