Announcements

This section will be for births, engagements, birthdays, marriages, deaths, hockey honours etc but remember you have to let us know what's going on!

◇ Huge congratulations this week go to our very own Anna Smith and Emu (Adam Hunter) who got engaged last week on a short break to Budapest. Now Emu can drive and is engaged the Mens 1s will have to think of something else to fine him for. Here are the happy couple on their hols!

Kate Maxey

Team: Ladies 1st XI

1) Kate, welcome back to Chelmsford after a hiatus at Loughborough, can you tell us what they did to you to make you such a target for cards?

Well, definitely didn't just have to look up what hiatus meant :S haha well it seems when at Luff we had an extremely high card rate as well... Clearly my tackling skills aren't so great these days.

2) You were topping the scorers charts after day 1, and now you're nearly top of the offenders chart. What's caused such a turnaround?

Yeah that was clearly not correct, me scoring is not a usual occurrence, so thought I'd even it out with some cards.

3) Do you take pride in being part of a staggering record breaking CHC Ladies 1st XI (they've already recorded their worst ever disciplinary record in a season)?

Haha, hmm well you never want to receive the fair play award!!!

4) Men's 1st XI players Andy Fox and Harry Rayner were both spotted sporting bruises following some outdoor and indoor pre-season matches, allegedly as a results with altercations with yourself. Can you confirm or deny a track record of violence on a hockey pitch?

Harry head-butted me so that wasn't my fault! But no I'm normally such a calm person

5) Having spent 16 minutes in the sin bin this season, is this a hidden message to the Ladies 1st XI management that you need more rotation?

Ha oops, I just do it because the TD man always gives me sweets!

6) You are certainly in the mix for the coveted 'Serial Offender' award, and stand a chance of being the first woman to achieve the feat. Would that be a career defining moment for you?

I think this could be a highlight of my career if I ever were to receive such an accolade, however, there will be no cards for Chelmsford Chumps!

This week's section goes entirely to David Kitchiner...congrats Kitch!

- When asked how old he was, Kitch proceeded to proclaim he was the Peter Pan of Chelmsford HC!
- Sharing what a 'catch' he was in his prime...Indiana Jones - like!
- Knowledgeably explaining to Anna, Willy & Emu that when you add water to whisky a chemical reaction takes place and it releases flavours. He then went to take in the aromas of the whisky and took such a powerful sniff he snorted the whisky!!! Many eyes watering - his through the strength of the alcohol and the rest of us through crying with laughter!!

Christmas Partaaaaay!

Meet the CHC Captains!

Meet Gill Collins, high scorer and captain of our Ladies 4th XI who are topping their league and scoring lots of goals this season.

Nickname?

I don't have one anymore. It used to be Squirrel because apparently I bear a striking

Position played?

Centre Forward

Sporting Idol?

Ayrton Senna - his determination to be the best right to the end was amazing

Funniest moment on a hockey pitch?

My beautiful celebration prior to scoring for the 5s in my first season at the club which saw me face plant in slow motion on the water. I regularly have special little moments on the pitch, I would say I've almost fully mastered the art of making a complete tit of myself on the pitch

Proudest hockey moment(s)?

Stepping out with a full team for the first game of this season, with every player determined to play their best and get us back where we belong.

Which famous person would you most like to have dinner with?

Dawn French

Would you rather be attacked by one horse-sized duck, or fifty duck-sized horses?

Fifty duck-sized horses if I can have my stick I would see how many I could get in the back of the goal :-)

WHISKY NIGHT ROUND-UP!

What another fantastic whisky tasting evening at CHC HQ! After Ian Hunter 'retired' from organising it was touch and go as to whether it would go ahead this year but up stepped a team of organisers, with the Nourse family at the helm. The evening started with the Quaich, an expertly blended mix of whiskies, being passed round and then followed on with the addressing of the Haggis. Now for those of you that don't know a, now tradition of the evening, is Kitch trying to ring people's mobile phones whilst the address is going on (cue sniggering from him), most have learnt now to have their phones on silent but a veteran whisky taster fell foul to Kitch's prank this year! With the important job of carrying the expertly cooked haggis, Ian was dressed in his kilt complete with handy sporran for all his storage needs including none other than his mobile phone! Impeccable timing from Kitch meant Ian's pouch started to ring whilst he was holding the haggis and with no hands to rescue it, he was truly done! Needless to say the professional that is Ken waited for the laughter to die down before proceeding with the famous Burns poem, thanks to him once again for the part he played in the evening. Everyone then tucked in to the food and the whiskies, Kitch offered many people a fiver a strip and had surprisingly good takings...then the raffle commenced. Once everyone was sufficiently inebriated 'Nigel accepts a bid if you twitch King' started off the auction of the left over whiskies. Star bidder Danny McCamilie was back again this year bumping up club funds by generously bidding away, (at one point even against himself) and was just as generous as Nigel's description of the amount of whisky left in the bottles!

A big thank you must go to the Nourse family for being the main organisers of the evening, Andy for sampling and choosing the six whiskies for tasting and Robert, Liz and Anna for doing the brilliant spread of Scottish food: Neeps, tatties, haggis and cock-a-leekie for mains, followed by a selection of Scottish cheeses and then home-made flapjacks and Mackies ice cream for dessert. They would like to thank their 'official' helpers on the night, anyone that chipped in when needed along with Ian Hunter and David Lines for their advice and assistance on whisky and food respectively.

The Nourses are looking for someone to pass the baton onto for next year, rumour has it that Mr Kitchiner is up for it. Sources cannot confirm or deny this but can vouch for his knowledge of whisky, although are not sure about his somewhat alternative method of tasting the whisky (see Chelmsford Chump Section)! Regardless of who organises next year they will need a small army of helpers - if you are interested please let Bec Budd know.
